This lesson provides suggested American Heart Association and American Diabetes Association resources. You can tailor the lesson to your specific community needs. Add more resources or substitute different ones to make the lesson work best for your community.

Is the program aimed at adults?

Yes. You can keep participants interested by breaking them into small groups to review a resource. Ask each group to share what they learned with the full group.

No audiovisual equipment?

No worries. Make copies of printed handouts. Ask participants to take turns reading key messages aloud.

Have a projector?

Great. Use the slides to guide your talk. And download a Know Diabetes by Heart™ video for one of your interactive activities.

Have a good internet connection?

Show one of the Know Diabetes by Heart™ videos, divide participants into groups to take an online quiz or give a demo of an online tool.

Think about which formats are best to teach the health messages to your community members.

What type of information will best motivate your community?

The icon in front of each resource tells you the format of that activity. Below are tips on how to incorporate that activity into the lesson and how much time to budget for it.

Video: Play the video and engage participants in a discussion after the viewing.
Printed Handout: Ask volunteers to take turns reading the information on the handout.
Group Discussion: Divide participants into small groups. Ask each group to review the resource and report what they learned to the full group.
Online Tool: Give a short demonstration of the tool. Encourage participants to make a note of the URL so they can access it from home.
